An Enchanted Season is a heart-warming collection of holiday stories by four spellbinding authors.

Gifts of the Magi by Jean Johnson

Steve Bethel and his fiancée Rachel are in danger of losing their home, which is also a bed and breakfast, if they can't make the mortgage payment. Now they're facing a record-breaking snowstorm, and guests are calling to cancel their reservations. But the arrival of three mysterious guests might be their salvation.

This is a well-written story of love, compassion, generosity and miracles, and Jean Johnson makes it feel warm and cozy despite the blizzard. This story includes a touch of holiday cheer from a variety of religions, which I really liked. Steve and Rachel have been in a bit of a rut because of financial stress, and I loved seeing them re-ignite their passion for one another.

This anthology is just right for the holidays, with lots of warm fuzzies and gentle passion. Every story is tight and exquisitely written, so if you enjoy Christmas romances with a paranormal twist, you'll definitely want to pick this one up.
